Nat'ah Karem She Plants a Vineyard

In the Book of Proverbs, an extraordinary woman plants a vineyard "by the work of her own hands." Planting a vineyard is one of many labors the woman performs for herself and her family; other virtues mentioned include helping the needy, being a deep source of emotional support for her spouse and her children, and always speaking with wisdom and kindness. As members of Women's League, we broaden this interpretation to include the creativity of productive women in any and all family configurations, including those who are single. We also acknowledge that today's woman does many forms of work, trying to balance the demands of family, work, and self-actualization.
